

Biblical Roots of Justice conversation begins a Journey for Justice.....

Faith communities taking action with and for persons who are homeless in the District of Columbia

Journey for Justice

Building a commitment to significantly reduce homelessness in the District of Columbia, 2015 - 2019.

WE CAN AND MUST DO BETTER!

If not people of faith, who? If not now, when?

Biblical Roots of Justice - A Conversation

Sunday, October 12, 2014 - 2 to 4 PM
Second Baptist Church, 816 3rd St. NW

What compels us as people of faith to work for justice? In a conversation that takes us back to our biblical roots we find ourselves summoned to act for justice today, in 2014, in our city, Washington DC: summoned to confront homelessness, inadequate shelter facilities and very limited affordable housing in this our highly gentrified city.

In a recent article in the Washington Post Petula Dvorak comments "Relisha Rudd has gone missing again." This time Relisha, a symbol of our failure to notice and to take care, is missing from any discussion in the mayoral race. We can and must do better! A new administration must take notice of the city's failure to care for the most vulnerable and act.

Join the Journey for Justice - if not now, when? If not people of faith, who? We look forward to seeing you at the October 12th meeting.

No registration required for the Biblical Roots program. All are welcome. Parking available.

Going Forward....

The Journey for Justice begins with the conversation on the Biblical roots of our commitment.

FAST FORWARD -

Good Faith partners with 100 congregations to sign a resolution and commit to a covenant with the new mayor.

In this resolution the faith community promises to work with the new city administration to address homelessness. This resolution will be the basis of a covenant Good Faith seeks with the new mayor to make reduction in homelessness a priority in each year of their term, 2015 - 2019.

Your thoughts? Let us hear from you!
